

The Fast-Growing Job With A Huge Skills Gap: Cyber Security

Jeff Kauflin, FORBES STAFF

I cover leadership, management and careers. FULL BIO

Shutterstock

Some experts predict there will be a global shortage of two million cyber security professionals by 2019.

Forbes

Mars 2017

Dark Reading

June 2017

CAREERS & PEOPLE

6/7/2017
06:10 PM

Cybersecurity Faces 1.8 Million Worker Shortfall By 2022

Dawn Kawamoto
News

(ISC)2 report shows the skills shortage is getting worse.

Over the next five years, the number of unfilled cybersecurity jobs will rise to a whopping 1.8 million, a 20% increase from 2015 estimates, according to a new (ISC)2 survey released today.

Cybersecurity Skills Shortage Worsening for Third Year In A Row, Sounding the Alarm for Business Leaders

Third annual global study from ESG and ISSA finds cybersecurity skills shortage impacts 74 percent of organizations; explores causes and consequences of cybersecurity job stress

Global News Wire

May 2019